About the Story

The inspiration behind Judy's story of the little white light began several years ago before and after her husband, Sam Lowe, passed away. At the time, she did not understand it or why it started appearing. She never was afraid or uncomfortable about it and even started talking to it. Not only has it continued to appear every night and every morning, but even sometimes during the day. It has continued to make its presence known to Judy through several years of caring for her mother, who recently passed away as well.

It is Judy's hope that children of all ages, and adults as well, will discover their very own little white light and be inspired by it.

"This book is a must have for children of all ages and 'adults' too. Judy is a brilliantly intuitive writer who can help children know and understand a higher power. They will use this little book as a guide to helping them find their own higher pathway." – Karen Gresham Nickell
